Kathy Jenkins Earns New Certificates in Chronic Disorganization

RICHMOND, VA — October 1, 2012 – Kathy Jenkins, a Certified Professional Organizer®, has earned her Level 1 Certificate of Study in Chronic Disorganization and Level 1 Certificate of Study in Understanding the Needs of the Student CD Client. She provides residential and student organizing services through Come To Order and The Organizing Tutor.

These certificates are issued by the Institute for Challenging Disorganization (ICD). Jenkins completed both basic and specialized coursework on the issues, concepts, and challenges presented by adult and student clients who are hindered by chronic disorganization.

“It’s so important for professional organizers to pursue educational opportunities like these offered by the ICD. These classes introduce us to new research in the study of chronic disorganization, and we are learning to apply new strategies and approaches to help our clients conquer their organization challenges,” Jenkins explained.

“I am especially excited about receiving my certificate in Understanding the Needs of the Student CD Client, since working with students is my passion,” Jenkins said, who holds several organizing classes throughout the year for middle school and high school students through The Organizing Tutor.

The ICD is an organization with a mission to provide education, research, and strategies to benefit people challenged by chronic disorganization. The ICD explores, develops, and communicates information, organizing techniques, and solutions to professional organizers, related professionals, and the public.
